Okla. Rep's Comments May Cost

PRESS RELEASE from Human Rights Campaign

April 16, 2008

By Chris Johnson

Oklahoma Rep. Sally Kern (R) sure knows how to talk tough when it comes to her naming America's "most dangerous enemies," as exemplified by her hateful and well-publicized statement that gays are "the biggest threat our nation has, even more so than terrorism or Islam." The trouble is, Kern's words may be posing a more immediate threat right in her own backyard. Her inflammatory remarks are potentially turning off businesses from relocating to Oklahoma City. In recent weeks Staubach, a leading California-based real estate advisory firm, warned the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce that the media firestorm Kern created may considerably damage the city's image in a region that is working hard to reinvent itself as a desirable place to live and work (Journal Record):

Roy Williams, president of the Greater Oklahoma City Chamber, said the issue is a major concern the chamber is trying to address. He confirmed a Staubach consultant was troubled by Kern's comments during a recent visit to the city.

"He told us straight up 'I cannot recommend to any of my clients that they should consider Oklahoma City because of that,'" Williams said. "When you have one of the nation's premier relocation experts making those statements, you should pay attention to that and not dismiss it.

"And that's immediately what happened: People said, 'Well, then tell them not to come here.' The problem with that is they (relocating firms) represent many of the Fortune 500 companies. And to be so dismissive of something that's a lot more sincere than people are giving credit, to me, shows a lack of understanding of what's really going on."

State elected officials are charged with working to improve the daily lives of their constituents not making their lives more difficult by scaring away businesses that could bring jobs and spur economic development in the local area. Kern should know this, but it's unlikely that she'll be able to see past her deeply held prejudices to realize the true harm she's inflicting on her state and the livelihood of Oklahomans.

Since her anti-gay tirade was heard around the world, Kern bolstered by support from the far-right has dug in her heels to defiantly stand by her words. She clung to her views in a recent interview with Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission (an offshoot of the Southern Baptist Convention) Messenger Radio co-hosts Ray Sanders and Bob Nigh. Pam has a partial transcript of Kern's interview where she lambasts the "aggressive radical homosexual" over at the Blend.

Here's the 79th edition of The Montrose GEM. Sister Pitiful's Birthday

Robert's Lafitte in Galveston was the scene of the recent birthday party for Sister Mary Pitiful. She turned 102, or something like that. The Galveston Fire Dept. would not let them bring the cake into to the bar because it had too many flaming candles.

In fact, the whole block of Rosenberg in front of Lafitte's was blocked off with fire trucks, an ambulance and a large oxygen tent just in case it was needed to revive a fainting Sister Pitiful.

Play Soccer

I've been informed that the Montrose Soccer Club, founded in 2001, will field a men's team in the Houston Football Association, a local, amateur soccer league. And they looking for players.

The club currently competes in the coed league of the Houston Women's Soccer Association.

Co-founder Kevin Taylor says the group was formed to provide gay and lesbian players with a friendly organization in which to compete in the sport of soccer but the membership includes a mixture of gay and straight players.

Says Taylor, "We're not looking for the next David Beckham, but the league is fairly competitive. If a player hasn't played in years, but knows the game and has experience, he's welcome to practice with us and join the team."

Contact them through their website, www.montrosesoccer.org, or call 713-862-9491.

Leather Contest

Ladies and Gentleman get your LEATHERS ready. Wanted: Mr. and Ms. Leather Houston 08/09.

Black Hawk Leather is the sponsor and the Mr. Leather will be held Sept. 5 and 6 and the Ms. Leather Houston will be held Oct. 10 and 11, both at the Ripcord.

Call Black Hawk at 713-LEATHER for more information.

Become a Part of the Parade

Pride Houston is pleased to announce the 2008 Parade application is now online and available for submission. The application and rules can be found on our forms page. Deadline for submission is May 1, 2008 to avoid a late fee. Any applications not post marked by May 1, 2008 will be charge a late fee and any application not postmarked by May 15, 2008 will be rejected.

This year's parade will be held on Saturday, June 28, 2008 beginning promptly at 8:45pm at the intersection of Dunlavy and Westheimer.

If you have any questions about the parade application please call the Pride office 713.529.6979 or contact the Parade committee at parade@pridehouston.org.

At The Groove

This is Galveston's newest gay club just a few blocks from The Strand. Coming there May 3 will be the Misty Valdez Show and then on May 17, live singer Whitney McCray. The bears will be there May 16. But the really big event (of course, Bears are generally big too) will be the Prom Party May 30 and 31 with the crowning of a king and queen.

Lafitte's Remodels

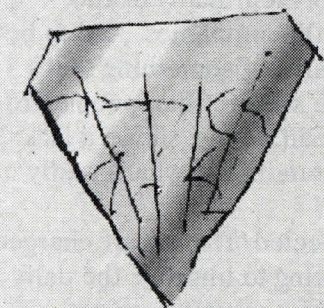

It's true. For the first time since Robert turned 39, Robert's Lafitte in Galveston has remodeled. They rotated their pool table. And they replaced some ceiling tiles.

Dine Out for a Cause

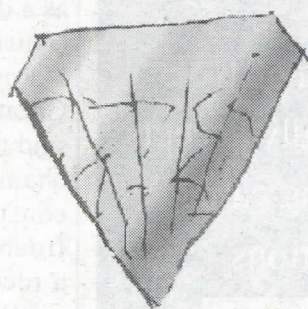

Thursday, April 24, will be a "dine out" day throughout Montrose and at many other restaurants in Houston. On that day (and night), one-third of food sales revenue will be given to AFH Houston in the fight against HIV/AIDS.

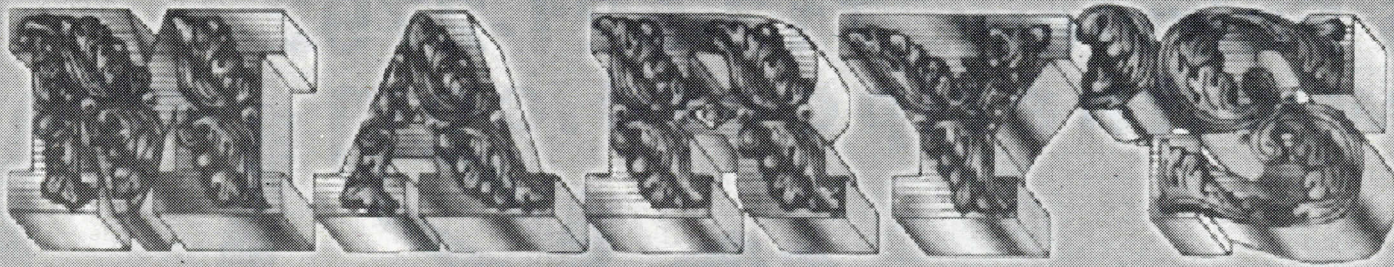

One eatery, the Little Bitty Burger Barn in northwest Houston, is donating 50% of the food sales.

A complete list of the restaurants is on page 10, I think

PRESS RELEASE from Gay & Lesbian

THE BEST
ABC News

ABC News' Nightline Presents In-Depth Feature About Transgender Executive

Media coverage of transgender issues can too often be plagued by sensationalism and inaccuracy.

Laudably, ABC News' Nightline avoided both in an in-depth March 6 report about transgender Microsoft executive Megan Wallent. The story, titled "A Stunning Secret," sensitively discussed why Wallent decided to transition in mid-life and how that decision affected her wife, children and colleagues. While the story honestly acknowledged the difficulties Wallent and her wife faced during her transition, ABC News reporter Neal Karlinsky explained that Wallent received more acceptance and support from her loved ones and co-workers than expected.

The story concluded with the encouraging message that, regardless of where they are in life, people need to acknowledge and be open about who they are. "...we always try to tell our kids, you have to be true to yourself," Wallent explained. "You have to be who you are. You have to be honest with yourself."

Los Angeles Times

L.A. Times Discusses the Impact of Marriage on Gay Families

With the California Supreme Court currently considering the constitutionality of a ban on marriage for gay and lesbian couples, the media could easily discuss the issue of marriage as an abstract concept. The Times instead spotlighted the real-life impact of marriage on several same-sex couples whose 2004 nuptials in San Francisco were invalidated.

In the March 6 article "Same-sex union—it's personal," reporter Mary Engel conducted extensive interviews to reveal how the brief experience of marriage emotionally affected these couples before the California Supreme Court voided their marriage licenses. "It was like standing there being showered with love and acceptance," said Torie Osborn about her marriage ceremony in San Francisco.

L.A. Times II

Times Addresses Violence In Schools

Since openly gay junior high school student Lawrence King was fatally shot by a classmate on Feb. 12 in an apparent hate crime, the Times has published an exemplary series of articles about the murder and the larger issue of anti-gay violence and bullying in schools. Most recently, reporters Paul Pringle and Catherine Saillant powerfully recounted the attempts of King—who lived in a shelter for abused and neglected children—to find a welcoming and safe place in his Oxnard, California middle school.

Their March 8 article "A deadly clash of emotions before Oxnard shooting" revealed the incessant harassment King received from his schoolmates for being openly gay and questioned whether more could have been done by school authorities to prevent his death. At the same time, Pringle and Saillant sensitively informed readers about the troubled upbringings of both King and his alleged killer. The article raised disturbing and important questions about the current capacity of schools to offer support and safety for

LGBT students and to intervene in the lives of at-risk youth.

New York Times

The N.Y. Times Explores Climate in Jamaica

In recent years, media have discussed the attacks on gay tourists in Jamaica as well as the persistence of anti-gay lyrics in some Jamaican dancehall songs. New York Times reporter Marc Lacey recently went one step further by traveling to Mandeville, Jamaica, to inform readers about recent instances of anti-gay violence and intimidation in the island nation.

In his Feb. 24 article "Attacks Show Easygoing Jamaica Is Dire Place for Gays," Lacey revealed that recent brutal assaults on gay people are part of the country's long history of anti-gay oppression and violence. "One (attack) may be an isolated incident," said Rebecca Schleifer of Human Rights Watch. "When they happen on a repeated basis across the country, it is an urgent problem that deserves attention at the highest levels."

Illustrating the gravity of the problem, Lacey recounted disquieting stories about a Mandeville police officer who now fears being killed after coming out in a local newspaper and about a mob of people who violently sought to disrupt the funeral of a gay person. Noting that governmental and religious authorities often perpetuate anti-gay hostility, Lacey's article presented readers with the sobering reality that a daunting amount of work must be done before gay people can live openly and safely in Jamaica.

THE WORST

Fox News

Fox News Continues with Derisive Coverage of Transgender People

In a disappointing contrast to Nightline's in-depth and objective coverage of transgender executive Megan Wallent, Fox News coverage continues to discuss transgender lives only in a dismissive and sensational manner. The most recent example of the news network's derisive coverage occurred on the Feb. 28 episode of The O'Reilly Factor.

During the show, host Bill O'Reilly joined contributor Laura Ingraham in criticizing a Colorado school district for its acceptance of an 8-year-old transgender student. Beyond being uninformed about the facts of the Colorado case, both O'Reilly and Ingraham showed a derisive attitude toward transgender people.

On Feb. 12 and Feb. 13, host Neil Cavuto of Fox News' Your World also discussed the Colorado story by expressing disdain for the school district's willingness to create a safe and inclusive environment for all its students. And, on Feb. 8, Laura Ingraham asserted that a transgender conference was "killing our culture" while guest-hosting The O'Reilly Factor.

Washington Post

Column Dismisses Inclusive Children's Book as Propaganda

In recent years, the children's book "And Tango Makes Three"—which tells the true story of two male penguins who raised a penguin chick, has faced considerable opposition across the country. Co-authored by playwright Peter Parnell and psychiatry professor Justin Richardson, the 2005 book received recognition as an American Library Association Notable Children's Book.

However, some parents and administrators have sought to remove the book from school libraries because it presents an affirming message about same-sex parents.

PRESS RELEASE from Servicemembers Legal Defense Network

Testifying April 14 before members of the House Armed Services Committee, former Assistant Secretary of Defense Lawrence Korb urged lawmakers to repeal "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" and "open up the military to all Americans who possess the desire, talent and character to serve."

"The ... policy is counterproductive to military readiness. Over the past 10 years more than 10,000 personnel have been discharged as a result ..., including 800 with skills deemed mission critical, such as pilots, combat engineers, and linguists. These are the very job functions for which the military has experienced personnel shortfalls."

A recent Zogby poll supports this view. It found that three-quarters of Afghanistan and Iraq veterans were comfortable interacting with gay people," Korb testified.
