Texas Law-maker Wants Long Waiting Period For Most Divorces

Blue Texan is a blogger and a contributor to Firedog Lake. It was there that we found this report:

"The Republican Party in Texas is so awesome.

a key state lawmaker says he plans to revive.

"The deal is, we need to take marriage more seriously," said Warren Chisum, who in October will celebrate his 51st wedding anniversary.

"Who is Warren Chisum? A DeLay-style theocrat who wants to keep gubmint outta the way of big bidness. He's an oil man who once tried to dump nuclear waste in Andrews County but loves to make intrusive, un-American laws based on his personal religious beliefs. He thinks homosexuality is a choice and has quite a few, shall we say, unusual views.

"Q: How do you deal with language in the Bible that doesn't fit our society, things like mentions of slavery?

"WC: Yeah, you know you talk about slavery, and certainly there was slavery in the Bible, but you know it was for the slave to serve the master and for the master to be kind to the slave. It's no different than in employment today.

"Oh, and he's the chairman of the Texas House Appropriations Committee.

"Quick! Someone ask the Republican Party's nominee for president what he thinks of this law. Did he have to wait 2 years before dumping his first wife for Cindy?"

Texas Realtors Don't Want Karl Rove

From the website Think Progress

The Daily News of Galveston County reports that former top Bush aide Karl Rove is scheduled as the keynote speaker at the Texas Realtors Association's convention in San Antonio this September. When local realtors Karen Derr and Alice Melott heard the news, "they were appalled."

In fact, Derr, Melott, and other area Realtors have "launched an e-mail campaign to persuade the association's leaders to strike Rove from the speaker lineup."

"What kind of message are we sending to the public we seek to serve by our very invitation to such an infamous politico?" Melott said in a letter to association leaders.

Another associate noted Rove's inability to meet the Realtors' ethical standards and stated his intention to protest Rove's presence at the convention:

"Rove definitely does not embody the ethics we want the public to associate with Realtors," said Bill Hammond, an agent with Karen Derr and Associates Realty.

Hammond said he plans to organize a protest of Rove at the convention. He also said the association's dues should not be used to pay Rove's speaking fees, which in some cases are as high as $40,000.

The Realtors are concerned that Rove would disrupt the convention. "We don't need that kind of atmosphere at the meeting," Derr said. Indeed, Rove tends to attract protesters whenever he appears in public.

At George Washington University speech last March, Rove was interrupted by a group of protesters who unfurled a banner reading "War Criminal." One a student asked Rove why some of his detractors believe he is a "fundamentally bad human being."

Under heavy pressure from students, New England prep school Choate Rosemary Hall has decided to cancel Rove's address at its commencement ceremony.

Rove spoke to a hostile crowd at the University of Iowa last March where students and local citizens protested his appearance at the university and "staged a mock trial" for Rove inside the student union before the speech.

Realtors association chairman Randy Jeffers said that he has no plans to withdraw the offer to Rove to speak at the convention, saying he is proud that the organization will feature "one of the most influential and controversial people in public policy today."

Thank You.

What a summer it has been, and still promises to be. I have to tell you that in this review, the subject is the best and worst I've ever experienced.

I promised to be on a quest for Montrose to find the city's best food. I can assure you that if we're strictly speaking food, I have found a diamond in the rough.

I defy anyone to go to this place and not agree with me about your experience. Picture it, you're driving through downtown lost for some reason.

It was probably that 8th Irish car bomb. You find yourself traveling down Leeland under I-45 and passing Telephone Road. Your nose starts to dance as you notice a lovely aroma coming from your right.

That's Kanomwan Thai Restaurant.

Turn in now! When I arrived with my guest I immediately noticed that it had to have been the most Nazi") to rush to your assistance, but this is his house you're in so don't be a rude guest.

That's the way it is in Thailand I've been told. He will also be the one to take your order.

That's the way it works. He takes the order and the wife and kids cook the thai egg rolls which were deep fried in peanut oil and were the most perfect blend of carrots, cabbage and rice noodles tightly hugged by rice paper.

The sauce was totally out of this world and had hints of thai chili's and honey. I ordered thai shrimp red curry with lemon grass, straw mushrooms, tomato, green onion. I swear to you I have never tasted such a perfect blend of sweet and spicy. Every bite was defeated by the next as I devoured the magnificent dish.

I can take spicy food, and this was so up to par. Lightweights be warned. Perfect is all I can say about the food here guys.

I've read other reviews and encourage you to do the same as well. This place is the most consistent place I've ever been to. I've been three times since the first time which was two weeks ago and I'm going back this weekend.

Note that the hours are sketchy. They open from 11:00 to 1:30 or 2:00 for lunch and open promptly for dinner 5:00 until 8:30. I'd say get there within the first hour and a half of each opening time.

I know it sounds difficult, but it is seriously worth it! Oh, and before I go. Don't ask for dessert either. The Thai Nazi will bring you a stick of gum.

So, Kam Laa, until next time. That's Thai for good bye!

Gay Pride Parties

Dear Houston Pride Committee:

I would like to offer my congratulations on a parade and festival well done to show our gay pride throughout our community; however, I am unable to do so. It came to my attention that the committee-sponsored "official" pride parties, both kick-off and finale, were held at clubs that do not cater to the LGBT community.

Open City, the location of the pre-pride party, is a straight club that happens to be situated on the same city block as a gay club, The Brazos River Bottom. I have never heard of Club Go, the location for the post-pride party. With the many clubs in Houston that are gay-owned, -operated, -staffed, and -supported, and that offer a rainbow of styles, decor, atmosphere, and clientele, could you not find two of that would have accommodated your needs for these parties?

... I, personally, am embarrassed to have had you in charge of the celebration that was meant to represent and support all persons in the LGBT community and to pay respect to the thousands of people who pioneered for our rights and acceptance of our lifestyle throughout the last several decades. Shame on you, Pride Committee. I respectfully request your collective resignation from your positions before next year's pride festival weekend.

Sincerely, Andrew J. Neary, proud member of our community

Watch Out for Valero

Below is an email I sent to the customer relations people at Valero I urge you all not to shop at Valero. It's obvious to me that they don't care for us as customers.

This afternoon (Gay Pride Parade day) I walked over to my neighborhood Valero at the corner of Westheimer and Montrose to buy a 2-liter of Coke and a pack of cigarettes. The Gay Pride festivities were in full swing and I was happy to see extra people working to expedite the crowd wanting to enter the store.

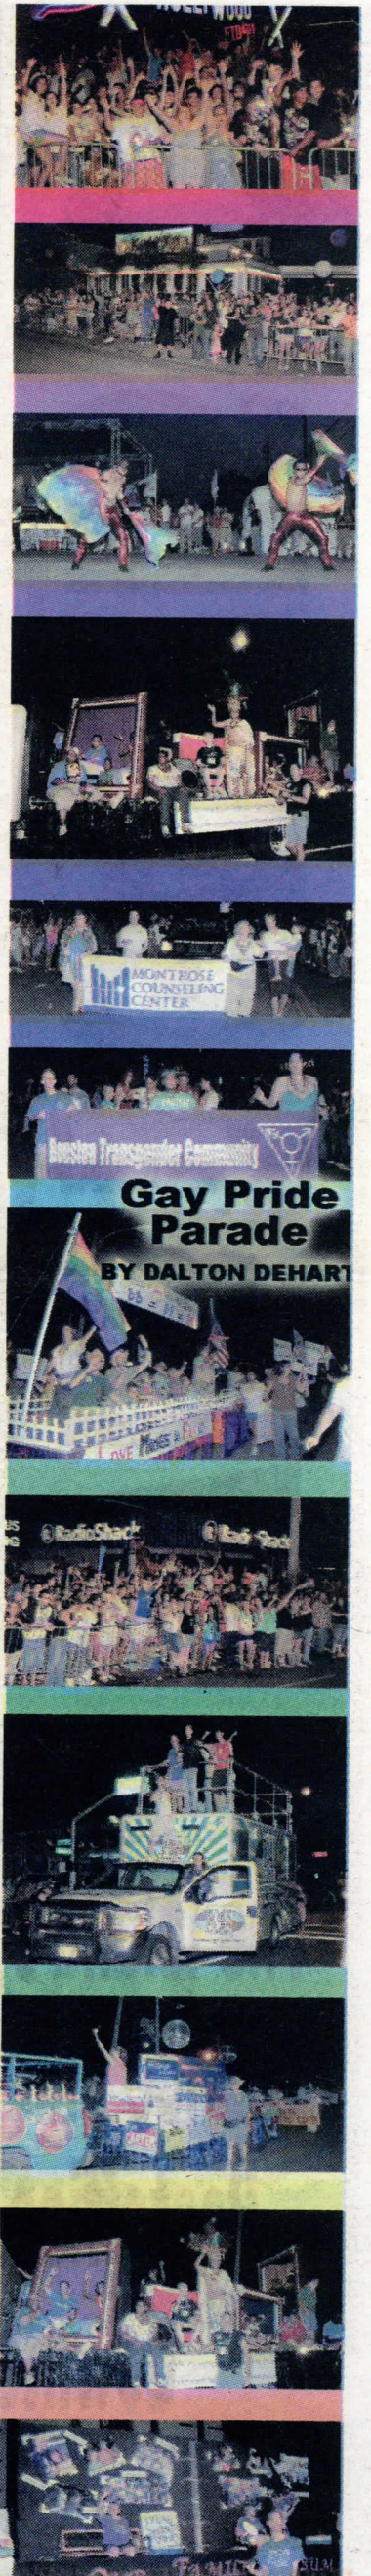

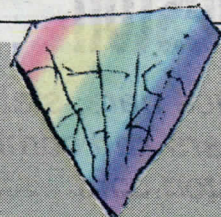

When I went to check out I was informed that the Coke was $3.00. This angered me so I didn't purchase it, but then asked for my brand of cigarettes, Pall Mall, which is usually $3.89 before taxes. I was informed the cigarettes were $5.99, and told the cashier I wouldn't pay that either.

A woman who was ahead of me was buying a bag of ice, but she left it because it was $3.00.

I couldn't believe the greed and taking advantage of the shoppers during Gay Pride. Also, I was so angry that no one who worked there seemed to care. I left the store and told everyone within earshot not to shop in the store because of the blatant price gouging that was going on inside.

... After leaving the Valero I walked a block to the Hollywood convenience store and made my purchase without getting screwed over.

With anger and disgust, Roy Rainwater

Here's issue #85 of your Montrose GEM. It's still summertime!

Watching and Watching Channel 13

About the dumbest thing on television today is an ad on KTRK about Frost Bank. Actually there's two ads.

The first one is a promo for the other one and says something like, "Now you can get the time and temperature, sponsored by Frost Bank, simply by watching Channel 13." This ad doesn't actually give you the time and temperature. It promotes another one that does.

The problem is that the spot that gives the time and temp only runs a few times each day, as far as I can tell.

"Honey, turn that TV off and come to bed."

"I can't. I'm watching Channel 13 so I'll know the time and temperature. It's been four hours since that last Frost commercial but I can't leave now. Soon they'll give me the time and temperature. I'm sure it's changed since the last commercial."

Dumb.

Quickies

The Groove in Galveston has $1 vodka every day 4:00-8:00 p.m. Also, C.C. Ryder's Karaoke nights (Tues. & Thurs.) sometimes features a visit by her mother, C.B. Ryder.

Crocker is now open on Crocker Street (half block north of Ripcord). Perhaps you'll remember it as the old location of many bars, including Briar Patch and Paradise. You can play Wii (or is that WII) there. You know, bowling and tennis, etc. I played one round of bowling and scored a spare. So I quit while I was ahead.

Anita Bump's is now open in the Hollywood strip center behind South Beach. They serve food for lunch and dinner and then Thurs.-Sat. nights they have Anita herself performing and Rich's DJ Mark D playing tunes for Sunday brunch.

Tim Brookover Moves On

"Greetings. Over these past seven-plus years, the experience of editing OutSmart has been a joy, and I am proud of the work that the staff, contributors, and I have done. The time has arrived, however, to pursue new opportunities. ...

"I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your help with providing ideas, inspiration, and information over the years."

Homophobe Jesse Helms is Dead

In the first few days following Helms demise, the news outlets spoke highly of him as a conservative leader and a man who stuck by his beliefs. Ugh!

But eventually, after a national cry of indignation, the stories became more truthful.

AmericaBlog passes this along from The Guardian, a British newspaper:

"Senator Jesse Helms, member of the US Senate's foreign relations committee for two decades and its chairman from 1995 to 2001, has died at the age of 86. To echo this newspaper's memorable comment on the death of William Randolph Hearst, it is hard even now to think of him with charity. From his earliest years, Helms's attitudes recalled those of an earlier southern bigot, Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi, who so outraged his Senate colleagues, that they eventually refused even to let him take his seat.

"There was never a comparable risk for Helms, who maintained an old-world courtesy in his personal contacts. But that was only on the surface. He became one of the most powerful and baleful influences on American foreign policy, repeatedly preventing his country paying its UN contributions, voting against virtually all arms control measures, opposing international aid programs as "pouring money down foreign rat holes", and avidly supporting military juntas in Latin America and minority white regimes in Southern Africa.

"In domestic politics he denounced the 1964 Civil Rights Act as 'the single most dangerous piece of legislation ever introduced in the Congress,' voted against a supreme court justice because she was 'likely to uphold the homosexual agenda,' acted for years as spokesman for the large tobacco companies, was reprimanded by the justice department and the federal election commission for electoral malpractice, and compiled a dismal personal record as a slum landlord.

From Jesus Central Website

Nosehomosexuals, they're not just for Pastor Haggard anymore.

This is to Ed Vitagliano of the American Family Assn.

Dear Mr. Vitagliano:

I did not know that the AFA's OneNewsNow had a policy to replace the word "gay" with "homosexual" until I saw the coverage of sprinter Tyson "Gay's" win at U.S. Olympic track and field trials. Here's how they described it:

Homosexual eases into 100 final at Olympic events

Tyson Homosexual easily won his semifinal for the 100 meters at the U.S. Olympic track and field trials and seemed to save something for the final later Sunday.

On Saturday, Homosexual misjudged the finish in his opening heat and had to scramble to finish fourth, then in his quarterfinal a couple of hours later, ran 9.77 to break the American record that had stood since 1999.

Asked how he felt, Homosexual said: 'A little fatigued.'

It's a great policy, one I hope the AFA will pursue beyond the pages of OneNewsNow. For instance, have you considered pressuring Amazon and iTunes into changing their Marvin Gaye and Gay Talese catalogs into collections of the works of Marvin Homosexual, and Homosexual Talese.

And given the fact that we're fighting a war for Christmas, shouldn't AFA be out front, demanding that the lyrics of that "Deck the Halls" be changed to "Don we now our homosexual apparel." And what about West Side Story? Shouldn't the character, Maria, be singing, "I feel pretty and witty and homosexual."

Then there are those flowers. You won't find a single florist who sells "nosehomosexuals" listed in the Google. All you get are Pastor Haggard hits. It seems like you could do something about that too.

Heterosexually yours,

Gen. J.C. Christian, patriot

99-Cents Only Stores

I love our store on Westheimer. I shop there two or three times a week. Now to all you guys who say it's beneath you to shop there, I say get over it. Go the big stores and buy your honeydew melons at 2 or $5.00. Or buy them just as perfect at the 99-Cents Only store.

But what prompted me to bring this subject up was I saw on CBS (I think it was CBS) where at the 99-Cents Only stores in California (same chain) they sell wine.

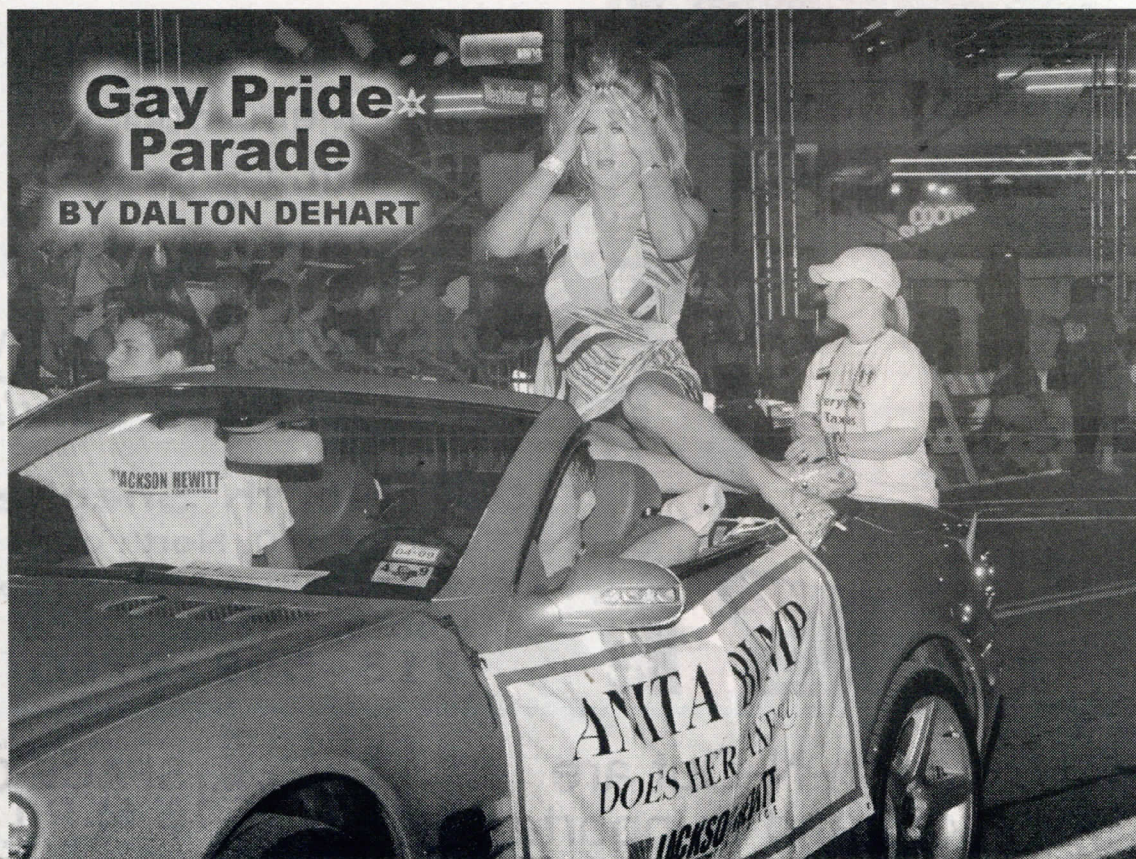

Yes, a bottle of wine for 99 cents. Well, I'd like to try that.

Big Bertha

That's the hurricane in the Atlantic. But it's also the name of my confidential informant embedded in the secret meeting rooms of Big Oil. And Big Bertha reminds me that one oil giant, Chevron, did not participate in V.P. Dick Cheney's secret meetings early in his term.
